007<sup>J</sup>

Headquarters September 21st, 1997

Hello 007,

We have just this instant received the most alarming reports from our intelligence in Luxor, Egypt.

Briefly before being liquidated (icecycle penetrating the upper part of the spinal cord) our local and usually very reliable source in Luxor, Hassan El Fadil, managed to pass on crucial information to HQ.

Hassan discovered that the Egyptian government has tried to keep it a secret that the entire governmental computer network has been infected by an extremely destructive and selfgenerating virus. The virus has left several "salutes" on it's way through the network indicating that Spectre is the culprit.

HQ finds strong reason to believe that the Egyptian incident was merely a test run of a far larger and villainous scheme to be carried out by Spectre in order to gain world power.

This theory is sustained by word from our man in Dresden with whom contact has been attempted supposedly by a female employee from Spectre who is getting cold feet. The contact has so far been rather abrupt. We suspect that she might be surveyed by Spectre. However, in the brief phone calls this woman has also mentioned something about a virus and our man is now trying to set up a meeting.

So 007 - you are from now on expected to be in a stand by situation. Please confirm that you are ready to aboard holiday and reenter the service.
